La Follette And Blaine Sweep State By Five To One Majority

Victors Carry Whole Ticket with Them; Control Assembly and Possibly State Senate.

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8—Additional returns from Tuesday's Wisconsin election only served to increase the lop-sided majority given Senator Robert M. LaFollette and his running mate, Governor John J. Blaine. The endorsement accorded the two leaders continued down through the whole Republican state ticket which went before the people alligned with the causes advocated by the state's apparently acknowledged leaders.

The only question to be determined, with the exception of a few scattered districts, is the senatorial result. The assembly is generally considered one pledged to the LaFollette-Blaine ticket, while the complexion of the state senate is being claimed as favorable to both sides.

Throughout, the returns were meagre, and several districts which are considered the solution of the situation have not been heard from.

Big Majorities

Figures compiled early today from 1199 of the state's 2533 precincts, which include returns from all except three counties, give Blaine, 156,368; Bentley, 21,445; Arnold, 28,697.

A total of 1196 precincts, for United States give LaFollette 162,519; Hooper, 28,510.

Berger Elected

The election of Victor L. Berger, for the third time as representative from the 5th district was assured shortly after midnight when he substantially increased his lead to a majority of more than 4,000.

Latest returns from the 9th district give Schneider, Republican, 15,080; Graass, Ind. Republican, 6,400. Schneider followers are claiming a victory.

The election of Cooper, Voight, Nelson, Lampert, Browne, Frear and Peavy, all Republican, was realized shortly after the close of the polls.

The result of the contest in the 4th district was still in doubt, the fight being between Melms, Socialist and Schafer, Republican.

Two Amendments Carry

Returns from widely scattered sections, thus far received, indicate that constitutional amendment on cities inebriateness, would be lost, while the jurors and sheriff amendments would be ratified.

Given Strong Endorsement

JOHN J. BLAINE

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE

Senator Robert M. La Follette, who with his running mate, Governor John J. Blaine yesterday was returned to office by a record breaking majority, is now more strongly than ever entrenched as the acknowledged political leader of the state.

Shiocton Bank Bandits Flee When Surprised By Citizens

SECOND ATTEMPT IN WO WEEKS FRUSTRATED; BURGLARS INTERRUPTED WHILE DRILLING VAULT DOOR

Shiocton, Wis., Nov. 8—Two bandits were surprised while in the act of drilling into the vault of the Shiocton State bank here Tuesday morning, but escaped in an automobile amid a reign of shots from their pursuers.

Although posses were organized at once and a systematic search instituted in all parts of the Outagamie county, the bandits have not been located.

Second in Month

The raid was the second on the local bank within four weeks. A previous attempt was made on October 16, but it failed because of the presence of a large iron safe against the inner wall of the vault which blocked entry for the bandits, after they had blown a large hole in the vault.

The burglars, who were halted in their attempt yesterday morning, had gained entrance to the building by forcing in the rear door and were working with an acetylene torch when discovered.

Fired on by Citizens

A citizen who lives across the street from the bank noticed the light of the torch and spread the alarm. Firing shots into the air, the man waited for the bandits to rush from the bank. They bolted through the door, rushing to a waiting automobile, and amid a reign of bullets, made their escape.

Telephone warnings were sent to all neighboring towns and in a few moments posses were organized in all parts of the county.

P. A. Pratt Named Manager Of The Mott & Wood Co.

Paul A. Pratt, advertising manager of the Tribune has accepted the position as manager of the Mott & Wood Co. and has resigned his place on the Tribune staff. Mr. Pratt will take up his new duties officially within the next week or ten days.

Came Here in 1920

Mr. Pratt came to Wisconsin Rapids on Jan. 1, 1920, to become advertising manager of the Tribune and while here has made a large circle of friends. While the butter business is a new venture for him, he is a capable manager and will undoubtedly make a success of the business. The company has recently under gone a reorganization.

Sierck Succeeds Pratt

Arthur C. Sierck, circulation manager of the Tribune has been promoted to succeed Mr. Pratt as advertising manager. Mr. Sierck is a native of Wisconsin Rapids having spent his boyhood days and school days in this city. Before the war Mr. Sierck was engaged in the news stand business in this city and later entered the U. S. Army in the Engineering corps. After the Armistice he entered the employ of the Jackson Milling Co. as head of the traffic department, resigning there to become Circulating Manager of the Tribune in August. Mr. Sierck is now owner of the City News Depot of this city. He is well and favorably known throughout the city by a large number of friends, who will be pleased to learn of his position of larger importance and responsibility.

Clover School Pupils Pay Visit To Local Industries

Wisconsin Rapids was visited by eleven husky youngsters from the Clover school, Town of Grand Rapids, near Kellner, headed by Miss Ruth Munroe, teacher. As a part of the school training the pupils were brought to the city to visit local industries and publi buildings. Places visited were the Court House, City Library, Wisconsin Rapids Tribune, Mott & Wood Co. Normington Bros. Laundry, Jackson Milling Co., and the American Machinery Co. foundry.

In the party besides the teacher were Harry Pribbanow, Arnold Bramstead, Frank and Agnes Klafka Kenneth and Esther Arndt, Leo Seager, Emil Kruger, Anthon and Loide Kauth and Leona Zimmerman.

Irene Streblow President In Biron School Election

Irene Steblow was elected president of the town board in the election held in the Biron schools yesterday. Other officers chosen were:—Violet Sager, clerk; Helen Haydock, treasurer; Mildred Barton, supervisor; Lawrence Carlson, justice of the peace; Richard Gafney; constable. Six trustees were also chosen, as follow:—Alverta Sipe, George Whelton, Atta Atwood, Isebel Rorheleau; Florence Sweeney, and George Peterson.

Free Tickets To Livestock Exposition At The Tribune

The Daily Tribune has a few free tickets to the International Live Stock Exjosition which is to be held at Union Stock Yard, Chicago, Dec. 2. to 9th. Any farmers or others who plan to attend the big exposition may call at the Tribune office and secure tickets.

City Contributes $719 In Salvation Army Drive

A total of $719 was raised in Wisconsin Rapids in the drive for funds for the Salvation Army. Dr. F. X. Pomainville, who carried on the campaign in this city, reported today. No reports have been received as yet from Port Edwards and Nekoosa where campigns were also conducted, and the totals raised in those two villages are expected to materially swell the contribution of southern and eastern Wood County, which is all included in one district.

The money raised goes directly to the state organization of the Salvation Army, for use in Wisconsin by the organization in carrying on its work. In the past the Salvation Army has always been ready to care for local cases called to its attention.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

The subject for Rev. Barry's sermon this evening is "The Supreme Need of the World Today." Services begin at 8:00 p. m. at the First Baptist church.

A co-operative bank has been established by native women in the presidency of Madras, India.

Tribune Telephone Was Popular During Evening

The Wood County Telephone Company operators were treated to a busy time last night by the people of Wisconsin Rapids and community when 520 calls were recorded from eight o'clock to shortly after midnight, on the Tribunes two lines. Election returns were much sought for by the public. The chief interest in the election was the contest for sheriff, second interest was in Scout elections and third choice was the state ticket results, inquiry being especially directed to La Follette candidates.

Point Woodsman Killed In Auto Crash Tuesday

Stevens Point, Wis.—Hibbard Shepreau, Stevens Point, aged 56, a woodsman in the employ of the John Week Lumber company, was instantly killed at noon Tuesday when the touring car which he was dirving left the concrete and turned end over end into the ditch on highway 18 west of the city, breaking his neck.

Shepreau's companion in the car Fred Nitz of Dancy, aged 32, a fellow woodsman, escaped with a cut on the top of the head and a general shaking up. His injuries are not serious.

Following the crash, Nitz attempted to arouse his companion, not realizing that he was dead. He then started out to get help but Cornor H. D. Boston arrived and took the body in charge, a passing motorist from Marshfield having brought news of the tragedy of the city in the meantime.

Shepreau, who has always made his home here, had been employed in the woods near Moon, Marathon county. He accompanied Nitz to Stevens Point yesterday, coming down to get working cloths which he had left here. The pair left town on their return trip to the lumber camp shortly before 12 o'clock. Nitz is the owner of the car and was driving.

SCOUT BILLMEYER ELECTED MAYOR

ZABAWA, JACOBSON, AND REDFORD ARE OTHER VICTORS IN CONTESTS FOR CITY OFFICES

Harold Billmeyer was elected mayor in the school election yesterday by close to a 200 plurality over Clifford Dolan, his closest opponent. Other victorious candidates were Joe Zabawa, chosen treasurer without opposition, George Jacobson, who nosed out Alexander Kirschling for assessor by two votes, and John Redford, chosen justice of the peace out of a field of four candidates.

Aldermen from the five schools are: Victor Billmeyer, high school; Harry Wolfe, Lowell school; William Michelson, Howe school; Robert Conway, SS. Peter & Paul's school; William Kostusiak, St. Lawrence school.

Few Ballots Spoiled

Scout Executive E. H. Justice, who supervised the election, reposted following the counting of the ballots last night that out of the more than 800 ballots cast less than ten were spoiled. Pupils in the fifth grade and above in the schools of the city were eligible to take part in the election.

Following are the complete returns.

Mayor

JAMES A. BOGIE HAS SAFE MARGIN IN SHERIFF RACE

LOCAL MAN HAS PLURALITY OF OVER 700 WITH THIRTY PRECINCTS HEARD FROM; STRONG IN CITY.

Carrying Wisconsin Rapids by about 400 votes and Marshfield by over 200, James A. Bogie swept to victory over Will A. Cole in the contest for Sheriff of Wood County by a majority which partial returns indicate will run well over 500. James Lynch, who shared the Independent column on the ballot with Cole, polled a light vote in all sections of the county except the fifth and sixth wards in Wisconsin Rapids, and ran a poor third.

Returns from thirty precincts, including all the cities and the principal villages of the county, give Bogie 3,144, Cole 2,431, and Lynch less than 500, giving Bogie a present plurality of 713. Unofficial reports from the town of Lincoln place Bogies majority there at about 100 and with the precincts yet to be heard from chiefly the thinly populated townships in the western and southern part of the county, it is not considered possible that even though they should go strongly for Cole as they did in the primaries that Bogie's lead can be cut below the 500 mark.

COUNTY OFFICES

Sam Church, county clerk.
James La Vigne, treasurer.
James A. Bogie, sheriff.
A. B. Bever, Clerk of Court.
R. R. Williams, district attorney.
Henry Ebbe, register of deeds.
G. W. Severns, surveyor.

Strong in City

Although it had been expected that Bogie would carry Wisconsin Rapids, the extent of his strength here came even as a surprise to his most active supporters. He carried every ward in the city, most of them by wide margins, and piled up a total plurality of 399 votes. Cole ran strong in his home town of Hansen, and also in Arpin, and carried Port Edwards, Pittsville, Wood, Auburndale and Sherry. The rest of the precincts heard from went for Bogie.

The following table shows how Wisconsin Rapids voted in the sheriff contest by wards:

Ward	Bogie	Cole	Lynch
1st	128	67	3
2nd	204	139	23
3rd	156	142	3
4th	180	143	28
5th	131	67	66
6th	178	51	76
7th	126	97	44
8th	96	94	30
	1,199	800	276

G. O. P. Candidates Win

The regularly nominated Republican nominees for all other county offices were elected practically without opposition. The strongest showing by the opposition candidates running on the Independent ticket was made in Wisconsin Rapids, but even in this city the regular candidates all won by a vote of four to one or better.

The full La Follette-Blaine slate for state offices swept Wisconsin Rapids and Wood county by majorities even greater than those accorded them by the state as a whole. La Follette, in Wisconsin Rapids, ran behind the rest of his ticket due to the comparativeir heavy vote given Mrs. Jessie Jack Hooper, the Independent Democratic candidate, but even here the senator's majority was in the ratio of well over four to one.

Expect Record Number Of Deer Hunters This Season

Figueres gathered by the state conservation commission at Madison indicate their will be more deer hunters in the northern Wisconsin woods than every before. The season opens Monday, November 13, and continues through Wednesday, November 22. Many Wisconsin Rapids sportsman are planning to leave for the north Saturday and Sunday in order to be on the ground Monday morning.

The limit on deer in Wisconsin is one buck, not less than one year old. Deer hunting is forbidden in Wood county this year and is also under the ban in all adjoining counties except Clark.

Winnipeg today enters upon its 50th year as an incorporated city.

New Sheriff

James E. Bogie, who defeated Will A. Cole for Sheriff of Wood county in yesterday's election. He will take office January 1.

Thieves Steal Nearly Carload Of Cranberries

Railroad detectives and other officials are on the lookout for thieves who entered a car shipped from Cranmoor station on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road several days ago and made away with nearly the whole carload of cranberries which were consigned to a grocery firm at Pueblo, Colo. No trace of the missing berries has been fund yet.

Boxes and Barrels

The car load shipment consisted of 150 bbls. of cranberries from the Jacob Emmerich marsh and 150 boxes, which are half barrel capacity, from the Arpin Cranberry Co. The car was shipped without being sealed from Cranmoor and at New Lisbon the agent put on the seal on the car doors. The shortage was not discovered until the car reached destination at Pueblo, where it was found that all the boxes were missing and forty-five of the 150 bbls. had been taken.

Have No Clue

No clue of the theft has been found, however, local cranberry men believe that the car was rifled while enroute between Cranmoor station and New Lisbon.

Pick Successor To E. H. Justice This Afternoon

A successor to E. H. Justice, Scout executive of the local council, who resigned to be associated again with his former employers in Indiana, will be selected at the meeting of the local council in Scout headquarters this afternoon. No announcement was forth coming as to who the new man would be.

Mr. Justice, who leaves with his family next week, apepared before the Rotary Club and thanked the members of that organization for their efforts, their moral and financial assistance. He said that he regretted to leave and wished the community greater success under the new leader.

Wausau C. of C. Sec'y. Addressed Rotarians

Donald Caldwell, secretary of the Wausau Chamber of Commerce, told the Rotary Club at noon Wednesday that the trouble with American communities was that they were striving for size of population instead of the quality of their community. He addressed the club on "Better Business Methods." In speaking of the future of the small communities, Mr. Caldwell said that the next ten years would be golden years of opportunity for the smaller communities for he predicted that the people in the larger centers and the many legitimate manufacturing plants and business houses now in the great industrial centers would work toward the smaller towns.

He said that the cities which would prosper were those wide awake to their opportunities. He said mushroom growth was had but hoped that all the towns in the Wisconsin Valley would be awake to the chances they had and would receive their normal growth.

STRONGHOLDS OF G. O. P. FALL IN NEAR LANDSLIDE

NON-PARTISAN LEAGUERS APPEAR VICTORS IN MINNESOTA SENATE RACE BUT MAY LOSE NORTH DAKOTA.

(By Associated Press)

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 8—When returns on United States Senator had been received from 1,014 of the state's 3,479 precincts at noon today, the count showed Kellogg, 93,929; Shipstead, 120,298; Olson, 41,531.

For Governor: 993 precincts give Preuss, 113,215; Johnson, 95,157; Irrebraus, 27,093.

Townsend Defeated

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8—Former governor Wm. Ferris, a Democrat, was assured of election to the United States Senate today when, with but 494 of the precincts not heard from, out of 2,906 in the state, he was holding a lead of 18,216 over his Republican opponent, Charles E. Townsend.

The last time a Democratic senator was elected in Michigan was in 1852. Governor A. J. Groesbeck and the remainder of the Republican ticket were assured of re-election by a large majority today.

G. O. P. Majorities Cut

New York, Nov. 8—Swept by a rising tide of Democratic victories in many states, the great Republican majorities left by the Harding land slide of two years ago were knocked right and left in yesterday's election. Republican majorities in the United States Senate and in the House of Representatives were sharply reduced but Republican leaders declared they would not be wiped out.

At noon today, eastern standard time, 25 states had completed their congressional returns, but neither the Republicans nor Democrats had progressed far enough to indicate who would have control of the House of Representatives.

Up to that time the House stood: Republicans, 185; Democrats, 137; Socialist, 1. The majority to control is 218.

Iowa was the only state which has returned a solid Republican delegation.

Lodge is Victor

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican administration leader in the Senate came through with a plurality of 19,045, on the face of returns. Friends of Gaston, his democratic opponent, are talking of asking for a recount.

In Indiana, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Michigan and West Virginia Democratic senators replaced Republicans, while others are being conceded on the face of returns.

Republicans had the assurance of a senatorial victory to their credit however, in Nebraska, where R. B. Howell displaced Senator G. M. Hitchcock, Democratic leader, and with prospects of another in Ohio, although today's returns showed Senator Pomerene, Democrat, cutting down the lead of his Republican opponent, Representative Fess.

No great Republican gains in the House of Representatives had appeared today to count against the Democratic gains made in several states. Various causes ranging from prohibition to tariff were being brought forward as responsible for the results.

New York, Nov. 8—Democratic gains in national elections continued to appear in the Senate today as returns came in from all parts of the country. The great majority rolled in by the Republicans in the Harding landslide of two years ago, was gnawed into by the Democrats in districts in many states where Republican victories were expected.

Republican forces failed to break into the Democratic ranks in the south and lost one congressional district which they had held for years, the 9th, Virginia.

Illinois Woman Elected

Speaker Gillette was re-elected. Uncle Joe Cannon gave up his seat to a Republican. Miss Alice Robertson.

JAMES A. BOGIE HAS SAFE MARGIN IN SHERIFF RACE

LOCAL MAN HAS PLURALITY OF OVER 700 WITH THIRTY PRECINCTS HEARD FROM; STRONG IN CITY.

Carrying Wisconsin Rapids by about 400 votes and Marshfield by over 200, James A. Bogie swept to victory over Will A. Cole in the contest for Sheriff of Wood County by a majority which partial returns indicate will run well over 500. James Lynch, who shared the Independent column on the ballot with Cole, polled a light vote in all sections of the county except the fifth and sixth wards in Wisconsin Rapids, and ran a poor third.

Returns from thirty precincts, including all the cities and the principal villages of the county, give Bogie 3,144, Cole 2,431, and Lynch less than 500, giving Bogie a present plurality of 713. Unofficial reports from the town of Lincoln place Bogies majority there at about 100 and with the precincts yet to be heard from chiefly the thinly populated townships in the western and southern part of the county, it is not considered possible that even though they should go strongly for Cole as they did in the primaries that Bogie's lead can be cut below the 500 mark.

COUNTY OFFICES

Sam Church, county clerk.
James La Vigne, treasurer.
James A. Bogie, sheriff.
A. B. Bever, Clerk of Court.
R. R. Williams, district attorney.
Henry Ebbe, register of deeds.
G. W. Severns, surveyor.

Strong in City

Although it had been expected that Bogie would carry Wisconsin Rapids, the extent of his strength here came even as a surprise to his most active supporters. He carried every ward in the city, most of them by wide margins, and piled up a total plurality of 399 votes. Cole ran strong in his home town of Hansen, and also in Arpin, and carried Port Edwards, Pittsville, Wood, Auburndale and Sherry. The rest of the precincts heard from went for Bogie.

The following table shows how Wisconsin Rapids voted in the sheriff contest by wards:

Ward	Bogie	Cole	Lynch
1st	128	67	3
2nd	204	139	23
3rd	156	142	3
4th	180	143	28
5th	131	67	66
6th	178	51	76
7th	126	97	44
8th	96	94	30
	1,199	800	276

G. O. P. Candidates Win

The regularly nominated Republican nominees for all other county offices were elected practically without opposition. The strongest showing by the opposition candidates running on the Independent ticket was made in Wisconsin Rapids, but even in this city the regular candidates all won by a vote of four to one or better.

The full La Follette-Blaine slate for state offices swept Wisconsin Rapids and Wood county by majorities even greater than those accorded them by the state as a whole. La Follette, in Wisconsin Rapids, ran behind the rest of his ticket due to the comparatively heavy vote given Mrs. Jessie Jack Hooper, the Independent Democratic candidate, but even here the senator's majority was in the ratio of well over four to one.

Expect Record Number Of Deer Hunters This Season

Figueres gathered by the state conservation commission at Madison indicate their will be more deer hunters in the northern Wisconsin woods than every before. The season opens Monday, November 13, and continues through Wednesday, November 22. Many Wisconsin Rapids sportsman are planning to leave for the north Saturday and Sunday in order to be on the ground Monday morning.

The limit on deer in Wisconsin is one buck, not less than one year old. Deer hunting is forbidden in Wood county this year and is also under the ban in all adjoining counties except Clark.

Winnipeg today enters upon its 50th year as an incorporated city.

Thieves Steal Nearly Carload Of Cranberries

Railroad detectives and other officials are on the lookout for thieves who entered a car shipped from Cranmoor station on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road several days ago and made away with nearly the whole carload of cranberries which were consigned to a grocery firm at Pueblo, Colo. No trace of the missing berries has been fund yet.

Boxes and Barrels

The car load shipment consisted of 150 bbls. of cranberries from the Jacob Emmerich marsh and 150 boxes, which are half-barrel capacity, from the Arpin Cranberry Co. The car was shipped without being sealed from Cranmoor and at New Lisbon the agent put on the seal on the car doors. The shortage was not discovered until the car reached destination at Pueblo, where it was found that all the boxes were missing and forty-five of the 150 bbls. had been taken.

Have No Clue

No clue of the theft has been found, however, local cranberry men believe that the car was rifled while enroute between Cranmoor station and New Lisbon.

Pick Successor To E. H. Justice This Afternoon

A successor to E. H. Justice, Scout executive of the local council, who resigned to be associated again with his former employers in Indiana, will be selected at the meeting of the local council in Scout headquarters this afternoon. No announcement was forth coming as to who the new man would be.

Mr. Justice, who leaves with his family next week, apeapred before the Rotary Club and thanked the members of that organization for their efforts, their moral and financial assistance. He said that he regretted to leave and wished the community greater success under the new leader.

Wausau C. of C. Sec'y. Addressed Rotarians

Donald Caldwell, secretary of the Wausau Chamber of Commerce, told the Rotary Club at noon Wednesday that the trouble with American communities was that they were striving for size of population instead of the quality of their community. He addressed the club on "Better Business Methods." In speaking of the future of the small communities, Mr. Caldwell said that the next ten years would be golden years of opportunity for the smaller communities for he predicted that the people in the larger centers and the many legitimate manufacturing plants and business houses now in the great industrial centers would work toward the smaller towns.

He said that the cities which would prosper were those wide awake to their opportunities. He said mushroom growth was had but hoped that all the towns in the Wisconsin Valley would be awake to the chances they had and would receive their normal growth.

STRONGHOLDS OF G. O. P. FALL IN NEAR LANDSLIDE

NON-PARTISAN LEAGUERS APPEAR VICTORS IN MINNESOTA SENATE RACE BUT MAY LOSE NORTH DAKOTA.

(By Associated Press)

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 8—When returns on United States Senator had been received from 1,014 of the state's 1,479 precincts at noon today, the count showed Kellogg, 93,929; Shipstead, 120,298; Olson, 41,531.

For Governor: 993 precincts give Preuss, 113,215; Johnson, 95,157; Inbrehaus, 37,093.

Townsend Defeated

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8—Former governor Wm. Ferris, a Democrat, was assured of election to the United States Senate today when, with but 494 of the precincts not heard from, out of 2,906 in the state, he was holding a lead of 18,216 over his Republican opponent, Charles E. Townsend.

The last time a Democratic senator was elected in Michigan was in 1852. Governor A. J. Groesbeck and the remainder of the Republican ticket were assured of re-election by a large majority today.

G. O. P. Majorities Cut

New York, Nov. 8—Swept by a rising tide of Democratic victories in many states, the great Republican majorities left by the Harding land slide of two years ago were knocked right and left in yesterday's election. Republican majorities in the United States Senate and in the House of Representatives were sharply reduced but Republican leaders declared they would not be wiped out.

At noon today, eastern standard time, 25 states had completed their congressional returns, but neither the Republicans nor Democrats had progressed far enough to indicate who would have control of the House of Representatives.

Up to that time the House stood: Republicans, 185; Democrats, 187; Socialist, 1. The majority to control is 218.

Iowa was the only state which has returned a solid Republican delegation.

Lodge is Victor

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican administration leader in the Senate came through with a plurality of 19,045, on the face of returns. Friends of Gaston, his democratic opponent, are talking of asking for a recount.

In Indiana, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Michigan and West Virginia Democratic senators replaced Republicans, while others are being conceded on the face of returns.

Republicans had the assurance of a senatorial victory to their credit however, in Nebraska, where R. B. Howell displaced Senator G. M. Hitchcock, Democratic leader, and with prospects of another in Ohio, although today's returns showed Senator Pomerene, Democrat, cutting down the lead of his Republican opponent, Representative Fess.

No great Republican gains in the House of Representatives had appeared today to count against the Democratic gains made in several states. Various causes ranging from prohibition to tariff were being brought forward as responsible for the results.

New York, Nov. 8—Democratic gains in national elections continued to appear in the Senate today as returns came in from all parts of the country. The great majority rolled in by the Republicans in the Harding landslide of two years ago, was gnawed into by the Democrats in districts in many states where Republican victories were expected.

Republican forces failed to break into the Democratic ranks in the south and lost one congressional district which they had held for years, the 9th. Virginia.

BUY POTATOES

"Buy Potatoes" is the slogan in Wisconsin this week. There have been set aside and dedicated weeks, days and even months in which a certain object is to be accomplished and certain ideas and memories perpetuated, but none have compared in the timely element with this potato buying program. At this time especially the farmers need their funds to prepare for the winter months, to repair their barns, houses, fix their machinery and pay their debts and interest on their debts. Potatoes are very abundant and this crop upon which the farmer depended so materially to convert to ready cash, in not yielding him the money that it should.

People are holding off and not buying potatoes. If every family would buy a bushel this week think of the money that would be put into the farmers hand. Many families can use potatoes as the main portion of their food. If these families would contemplate their needs and would buy conservatively for their future months, the much needed cash would get to the farmers, business would be better, and it would have its favorable effect upon a large number of people exclusive of farmers.

Do your part, your towns people and buy potatoes.

behind the ticket. Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, who ran on a dry platform in New Jersey, was beaten by Governor Edwards, Democrat, who ran on an openly acknowledged wet platform.

Senator Johnson of California came back, as did Senator McLean of Connecticut, one of the administration leaders in the tariff fight.

In Delaware, Senator Dupont was having a close run for both the long and short terms. In Indiana, former Governor Ralston, Democrat, was running ahead of former Senator Beveridge, thus removing from the Republican field, one who had been counted on as an aspirant for Republican Presidential nomination in 1924 in case President Harding would decline.

Bruce Beats France

In Iowa, Col. Smith W. Brookhart was leading his opponent on the Republican ticket, although he was openly opposed by Republican leaders as the head of the so-called "radical" principles. On the other hand, Senator France, Republican, of Maryland, charged with radical tendencies, was beaten by the Democratic candidate, Wm. C. Bruce in Baltimore.

Shipsted Ahead

In Michigan, Senator Townsend, Republican incumbent, who had a fight on the Newberry issue, was running behind, while in Minnesota, where first returns favored Senator Kellogg, one of the senate leaders and close friend of the president, late returns showed him running behind Henry Shipsted, who ran on the farmer-labor ticket.

Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, veteran of many disputes in the Wilson administration, was leading his Republican opponent in returns early today and seemed sure of re-election.

In Montana, Burton K. Wheeler, Democratic candidate, was leading his Republican opponent, Riddick, for the seat of Senator Myers, Democrat.

Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, floor leader in the Wilson administration, and a figure in the peace treaty fight, was beaten by R. B. Howell, Republican national committeeman from the state.

O'Connor Leading Frazier

In North Dakota, where the Non-Partisan league was strong, returns showed that J. F. T. O'Connor, Democrat, was leading Former Governor Lynn J. Frazier, who was a Republican nominee.

In Ohio, Representative Fess, Republican, was running a close race and leading Senator Pomerene, Democrat, who had been counted as a possibility for Democratic presidential nomination in the event of his success this year.

Pennsylvania, going republican as usual, sent Gifford Pinchot to the Governor's chair with a Republican administration, and re-elected Senators Pepper and Reed, the latter both for the short and long terms.

Senator Gerry, Democrat, Rhode Island, beat former Republican Governor R. Livingston Beeckman.

In Texas, where a Democratic nomination is equivalent to election, Earle B. Mayfield was elected to the Senate.

Senator Poindexter, Washington, Republican was leading his opponents. In West Virginia, the Democratic senatorial nominee, M. M. Neely was leading Senator Sutherland, Republican incumbent.

Wisconsin returned Senator LaFollette to the Senate with a large plurality.

In Wyoming, where Representative Mondell, Republican, was running for Senate, late returns indicated a close race for Senator Kendrick, Democrat, who was said to have some Republican support.

Returns showed the Democrats making large gains in the House of Representatives and the Republicans taking their defeat in some places where they had not been expected.

Republican of Oklahoma, the only woman in the House, was defeated by a man—the Democrat who she defeated two years ago, and the present House got an additional woman member, a Republican, Winifred Huck, a daughter of the late William E. Mason of Illinois who had served in both the Senate and House.

With the defeat of Governor Miller of New York by Alfred E. Smith, the Republicans also lost thirteen seats of the empire state in the House of Representatives, and Senator Wm. Calder, who was beaten by Dr. R. S. Copeland, Democrat, health commissioner of New York City.

Bank Situation In State Improving Report Indicates

Madison, Wis.—Banking conditions are improving in Wisconsin, and will continue to improve as crops are marketed, but without bringing about a return to the normalcy that preceded the war, Marshall Cousins, commissioner of banking, reports in his quarterly summary of state institution.

Comparing the figures of September 15 this year with those of September 6, 1921, it is shown that deposits have increased $14,085,000 and bills payable and rediscounts show a decrease of $2,569,000. Investments in government bonds decreased $1,297,000 while investments in other bonds increased $5,416,000.

Not Normal Yet

"This showing of improvement must not be regarded as an indication that pre-war conditions have returned," Mr. Cousins said. "It is still a long hard tiresome journey to normalcy. Banks should continue restricting their loans to the essentials only should under no circumstances advance funds for non-essentials or for speculative purposes.

"The investment in outside bonds of whatever nature cannot be justified by the bank which shows bills payable or rediscounts. The dealers in bonds are making a strong effort to interest Wisconsin bankers in their bonds. Banks should profit by the experiences of the past several years and in considering offers of bonds bear in mind that a considerable loss was charged off by banks owing to depreciation in bonds.

"It is recommended that banks having surplus funds secure investments in their immediate locality. They will be benefiting themselves as well as assisting the people of the community by so doing.

"Many banks have adopted the policy of requesting those customers whose account was frequently overdrawn to close the account," Mrs. Cousins said. "In those cases where the overdrawing is habitual the bank should require the closing of the account. Such an account is of no value to the bank.

"A large borrower should not be permitted under any circumstances to increase his obligation to the bank through overdrawing his account. Theoverdraft must be calculated always as a part of the line of a borrower. In those cases where a borrower has already reached the statutory limit, it is a direct violation of the law to permit his obligations to be increased through an overdraft."

High School Basketball Practice To Open Soon

Basketball practice for the Lincoln high school team will commence in about two weeks, Coach Ritchay announced today. Prospects for a strong team are excellent, with a large amount of new material as well as the mainstays of last winter's five available. Len Le Roux, star forward for the past two years, will be available again this year and should prove a big factor in the success of the Rapids aggregation.

Hall Will Receive Appointment From Blaine Is Belief

Madison, Wis.—There is a general belief expressed by politicians here that Elmer S. Hall, retiring secretary of state, will be appointed in February to fill a vacancy in some important commission of the state government. This opinion has been strengthened since his defeat as a candidate for congress in the ninth congressional district at the primary election.

The name of Mr. Hall is being connected with two attractive state offices, each for a term of six years at a salary of $5,000. One is for insurance commissioner to succeed Platt Whitman, whose term expires in May, and the other to succeed George Harris as a member of the state board of control.

Friends of the secretary of state are active in urging his appointment to the vacancy to occur on the board of control. In this position he would be one of the three members of the board which is responsible for all state penal and charitable institutions.

As secretary of state, Mr. Hall has been well liked at the capitol, and his connection with the LaFollette organization is said to assure his appointment to one of the important posts in the state government.

Twenty-Six Seek Blaine's Pardon At Hearing Nov. 8

Madison, Wis., Nov. 6—Twenty-six applications for pardon, including those of three prisoners serving terms for murder in varying degrees, are to be heard by Gov. J. J. Blaine on Wednesday, November 8. This is one of the longest list of applications ever brought before the governor on the monthly pardon day.

Joe Gallo, Kenosha county, serving a life term for murder in the first degree, is among the applicants. Minnie Drinkwater, Crawford county, serving 14 years for murder in the second degree and George Zabojnik, Racine, serving 20 years for second degree murder, are also asking executive clemency.

BUY POTATOES

"Buy Potatoes" is the slogan in Wisconsin this week. There have been set aside and dedicated weeks, days and even months in which a certain object is to be accomplished and certain ideas and memories perpetuated, but none have compared in the timely element with this potato buying program. At this time especially the farmers need their funds to prepare for the winter months, to repair their barns, houses, fix their machinery and pay their debts and interest on their debts. Potatoes are very abundant and this crop upon which the farmer depended so materially to convert to ready cash, in not yielding him the money that it should.

People are holding off and not buying potatoes. If every family would buy a bushel this week think of the money that would be put into the farmers hand. Many families can use potatoes as the main portion of their food. If these families would contemplate their needs and would buy conservatively for their future months, the much needed cash would get to the farmers, business would be better, and it would have its favorable effect upon a large number of people exclusive of farmers.

Do your part, your town people and buy potatoes.

behind the ticket. Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, who ran on a dry platform in New Jersey, was beaten by Governor Edwards, Democrat, who ran on an openly acknowledged wet platform.

Senator Johnson of California came back, as did Senator McLean of Connecticut, one of the administration leaders in the tariff fight.

In Delaware, Senator Dupont was having a close run for both the long and short terms. In Indiana, former Governor Ralston, Democrat, was running ahead of former Senator Beveridge, thus removing from the Republican field, one who had been counted on as an aspirant for Republican Presidential nomination in 1924 in case President Harding would decline.

Bruce Beats France

In Iowa, Col. Smith W. Brookhart was leading his opponent on the Republican ticket, although he was openly opposed by Republican leaders as the head of the so-called "radical" principles. On the other hand, Senator France, Republican, of Maryland, charged with radical tendencies, was beaten by the Democratic candidate, Wm. C. Bruce in Baltimore.

Shipsted Ahead

In Michigan, Senator Townsend, Republican incumbent, who had a fight on the Newberry issue, was running behind, while in Minnesota, where first returns favored Senator Kellogg, one of the senate leaders and close friend of the president, late returns showed him running behind Henry Shipsted, who ran on the farmer-labor ticket.

Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, veteran of many disputes in the Wilson administration, was leading his Republican opponent in returns early today and seemed sure of re-election.

In Montana, Burton K. Wheeler, Democratic candidate, was leading his Republican opponent, Riddick, for the seat of Senator Myers, Democrat.

Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, floor leader in the Wilson administration, and a figure in the peace treaty fight, was beaten by R. B. Howell, Republican national committeeman from the state.

O'Connor Leading Frazier

In North Dakota, where the Non-Partisan league was strong, returns showed that J. F. T. O'Connor, Democrat, was leading Former Governor Lynn J. Frazier, who was a Republican nominee.

In Ohio, Representative Fess, Republican, was running a close race and leading Senator Pomerene, Democrat, who had been counted as a possibility for Democratic presidential nomination in the event of his success this year.

Pennsylvania, going republican as usual, sent Gifford Pinchot to the Governor's chair with a Republican administration, and re-elected Senators Pepper and Reed, the latter both for the short and long terms.

Senator Gerry, Democrat, Rhode Island, beat former Republican Governor R. Livingston Beeckman.

In Texas, where a Democratic nomination is equivalent to election, Earle B. Mayfield was elected to the Senate.

Senator Poindexter, Washington, Republican was leading his opponents. In West Virginia, the Democratic senatorial nominee, H. M. Neely was leading Senator Sutherland, Republican incumbent.

Wisconsin returned Senator LaFollette to the Senate with a large plurality.

In Wyoming, where Representative Mondell, Republican, was running for Senate, late returns indicated a close race for Senator Kendrick, Democrat, who was said to have some Republican support.

Returns showed the Democrats making large gains in the House of Representatives and the Republicans taking their defeat in some places where they had not been expected.

Republican of Oklahoma, the only women in the House, was defeated by a man—the Democrat who she defeated two years ago, and the present House got an additional woman member, a Republican, Winifred Huck, a daughter of the late William E. Mason of Illinois who had served in both the Senate and House.

With the defeat of Governor Miller of New York by Alfred E. Smith, the Republicans also lost thirteen seats of the empire state in the House of Representatives, and Senator Wm. Calder, who was beaten by Dr. R. S. Copeland, Democrat, health commissioner of New York City.

Bank Situation In State Improving Report Indicates

Madison, Wis.—Banking conditions are improving in Wisconsin, and will continue to improve as crops are marketed, but without bringing about a return to the normalcy that preceded the war, Marshall Cousins, commissioner of banking, reports in his quarterly summary of state institution.

Comparing the figures of September 15 this year with those of September 6, 1921, it is shown that deposits have increased $14,085,000 and bills payable and rediscounts show a decrease of $2,569,000. Investments in government bonds decreased $1,297,000 while investments in other bonds increased $5,116,000.

Not Normal Yet

"This showing of improvement must not be regarded as an indication that pre-war conditions have returned," Mr. Cousins said. "It is still a long hard tiresome journey to normalcy. Banks should continue restricting their loans to the essentials only should under no circumstances advance funds for non-essentials or for speculative purposes.

"The investment in outside bonds of whatever nature cannot be justified by the bank which shows bills payable or rediscounts. The dealers in bonds are making a strong effort to interest Wisconsin bankers in their bonds. Banks should profit by the experiences of the past several years and in considering offers of bonds bear in mind that a considerable loss was charged off by banks owing to depreciation in bonds.

"It is recommended that banks having surplus funds secure investments in their immediate locality. They will be benefiting themselves as well as assisting the people of the community by so doing.

"Many banks have adopted the policy of requesting those customers whose account was frequently overdrawn to close the account," Mrs. Cousins said. "In those cases where the overdrawing is habitual the bank should require the closing of the account. Such an account is of no value to the bank.

"A large borrower should not be permitted under any circumstances to increase his obligation to the bank through overdrawing his account. The overdraft must be calculated always as a part of the line of a borrower. In those cases where a borrower has already reached the statutory limit, it is a direct violation of the law to permit his obligations to be increased through an overdraft."

High School Basketball Practice To Open Soon

Hall Will Receive Appointment From Blaine Is Belief

Madison, Wis.—There is a general belief expressed by politicians here that Elmer S. Hall, retiring secretary of state, will be appointed in February to fill a vacancy in some important commission of the state government. This opinion has been strengthened since his defeat as a candidate for congress in the ninth congressional district at the primary election.

The name of Mr. Hall is being connected with two attractive state offices, each for a term of six years at a salary of $5,000. One is for insurance commissioner to succeed Platt Whitman, whose term expires in May, and the other to succeed George Harris as a member of the state board of control.

Friends of the secretary of state are active in urging his appointment to the vacancy to occur on the board of control. In this position he would be one of the three members of the board which is responsible for all state penal and charitable institutions.

As secretary of state, Mr. Hall has been well liked at the capitol, and his connection with the LaFollette organization is said to assure his appointment to one of the important posts in the state government.

The Place of Pines

CHAPTER I.

The last sound that Mike Clinch heard on earth was the detonation of his own rifle. Probably it was an agreeable sound to him. He lay there with a pleasant expression on his massive features. His watch had fallen out of his pocket.

Quintana shined him with an electric torch; picked up the watch. Then, holding the torch in one hand, he went through the dead man's pockets very thoroughly.

When Quintana had finished, both trays of the flat morocco case were full of jewels. And Quintana was full of wonder and suspicion.

Unquietly he looked upon the dead—upon the glittering contents of the jewel-box—but, always his gaze reverted to the dead. The faintest shadow of a smile edged Clinch's lips. Quintana's lips grew graver. He said slowly, like one who does his thinking aloud:

"What is it you have done to me, l'ami Clinch? . . . Are there truly then two sets of precious stones?—two Flaming Jewels?—two gems of Erosite like there never has been in all thees worl' excep' only two more . . . Or is one set false? . . . Have I here one set of paste facsimilies? . . . My frien' Clinch, why do you lie there an' smile at me so ver' funny . . . like you are amuse? . . . I am wondering what you have done to me, my frien' Clinch . . . "

For a while he remained kneeling beside the dead. Then: "Ah, bah," he said, pocketing the morocco case and getting to his feet.

He moved a little way toward the open trail, stopped, came back, stood his rifle against a tree.

For a while he was busy with his sharp Spanish clasp knife, whittling and fitting together two peeled twigs. A cross was the ultimate result. Then he placed Clinch's hands palm to palm upon his chest, laid the cross on his breast, and shined the result with complacency.

Then Quintana took off his hat.

"L'ami Mike," he said, "you were a man! . . . Adios!"

The night had turned frosty. Quintana, wet to the knees and very tired, moved slowly, not daring to leave the trail because of sink-holes.

What he had to have was a fire; he realized that. Somewhere off the trail, in big timber if possible, he must build a fire and master this deadly chill that was slowly paralyzing all power of movement.

At last he came to a place of pines, first growth giants towering into night, and, looking up, saw stars, infinitely distant . . . where perhaps those things called souls drifted like wisps of vapor.

When the fire took, Quintana's thin dark hands had become nearly useless from cold. He could not have crooked finger to trigger.

For a long time he sat close to the blaze, slowly massaging his torpid limbs, but did not dare strip off his foot-gear.

Later he ate and drank languidly, looking up at the stars, speculating as to the possible presence of Mike Clinch up there.

What a chase Clinch had led him after the Flaming Jewel. And now Clinch lay dead in the forest—faintly smiling. At what?

In a very low, passionless voice, Quintana cursed monotonously as he gazed into the fire. In Spanish, French, Portuguese, Italian, he cursed Clinch. After a little while he remembered Clinch's daughter, and he cursed her, elaborately, thoroughly, wishing her black mischance awake and asleep, living or dead.

Presently Quintana slept after his own fashion—that is to say, looking closely at him one could discover a glimmer under his lowered eyelids. And he listened always in that kind of sleep. As though a shadowy part of him were detached from his body, and mounted guard over it.

The inaudible movement of a wood-mouse venturing into the fire-lit circle awoke Quintana. Again a dropping leaf amid distant birches awoke him. Such things. And so he slept with wet feet to the fire and his rifle across his knees; and dreamed of Eve and of murder, and that the Flaming Jewel was but a mass of glass.

At that moment the girl of whose white throat Quintana was dreaming, and whining faintly in his dreams, stood alone outside Clinch's Dump, rifle in hand, listening, fighting the creeping dread that touched her slender body at times—seemed to touch her very heart with frost.

Clinch's men had gone on to Ghost Lake with their wounded and dead, where there was fitter shelter for both. All had gone on; nobody remained to await Clinch's homecoming except Eve Strayer.

It was not yet dawn, but the girl could endure the strain no longer.

With electric torch and rifle she started for the forest, almost running at first; then, among the first trees, moving with caution and in silence along the trail over which Clinch should long since have journeyed homeward.

But nowhere could she discover any impression resembling her stepfather's—that great, firm stride and solid imprint which so often she had tracked through moss and swale and which she knew so well.

Once when she got up from her knees after close examination of the muddy trail, she became aware of the slightest taint in the night air—stood with delicate nostrils quivering—advanced, still conscious of the taint, listening, wary, every stealthy instinct alert.

She had not been mistaken: somewhere in the forest there was smoke. Somewhere a fire was burning. It might not be very far away; it might be distant. Whose fire? Her father's? Would a hunter of men build a fire?

The girl stood shivering in the darkness. There was not a sound.

Now, keeping her cautious feet in the trail by sense of touch alone, she moved on. Gradually, as she advanced, the odor of smoke became more distinct. She heard nothing, saw nothing; but there was a near reek of smoke in her nostrils and she stopped short.

In the faint, pale luster she saw a tiny rivulet flowing westward from a spring, and, beside it, in the mud, imprints of a man's feet.

The tracks were small, narrow, slimmer than imprints made by any man she could think of. Under the glimmer of her torch they seemed quite fresh; contours were still sharp, some ready to crumble, and water stood in the heels.

As she stole along, dimly shining the tracks, lifting her head incessantly to listen and peer into the darkness, her quick eye caught something ahead—something very slightly different from the wall of black obscurity—a vague hint of color—the very vaguest tint scarcely perceptible at all.

But she knew it was firelight touching the trunk of an unseen tree.

Now, soundless over damp pine needles she crept. The scent of smoke grew strong in nostril and throat; the pale tint became palely reddish. All about her the blackness seemed palpable—seemed to touch her body with its weight; but, ahead, a ruddy glow stained two huge pines. And presently she saw the fire, burning low, but redly alive. And, after a long, long while, she saw a man.

He had left the fire circle. His pack and belted mackinaw still lay there at the foot of a great tree. But when, finally, she discovered him, he was scarcely visible where he crouched in the shadow of a tree-trunk, with his rifle half lowered at a ready.

She strained her eyes; but distance and obscurity made recognition impossible. And yet, somehow, every quivering instinct within her was telling her that the crouched and shadowy watcher beyond the fire was Quintana.

And every concentrated instinct was telling her that he'd kill her if he caught sight of her; her heart clamored it; her pulses thumped it in her ears.

Had the girl been capable of it she could have killed him where he crouched. She thought of it, but knew it was not in her to do it. And yet Quintana had boasted that he meant to kill her father. That was what terribly concerned her. And there must be a way to stop that danger—some way to stop it short of murder—a way to render this man harmless to her and hers.

No, she could not kill him this way. Except in extremes she could not bring herself to fire upon any human creature. And yet this man must be rendered harmless—somehow—somehow ah!—

As the problem presented itself its solution flashed into her mind. Men of the wilderness knew how to take dangerous creatures alive. To take a dangerous and reasoning human was even less difficult, because reason makes more mistakes than does instinct.

Stealthily, without a sound, the girl crept back through the shadows over the damp pine needles, until, peering fearfully over her shoulder, she saw the last ghost-tint of Quintana's fire die out in the terrific dark behind.

Slowly, still, she moved until her sensitive feet felt the trodden path from Drowned Valley.

Now, with torch flaring, she ran, carrying her rifle at a trail. Before her, here and there, little night creatures fled—a humped-up racoon, dazzled by the glare, a barred owl still struggling with its wood-rat kill.

She ran easily—an agile, tireless young thing, part of the swiftness and silence of the woods—part of the darkness, the sinuous celerity, the ominous hush of wide, still places—part of its very blood and pulse and hot, sweet breath.

Even when she came out among the birches by Clinch's Dump she was breathing evenly and without distress. She ran to the kitchen door but did not enter. On pegs under the porch a score or more of rusty traps hung. She unhooked the largest, wound the chain around it, tucked it under her left arm and started back.

BLAINE REQUESTS PLEDGE TO PEACE ON ARMISTICE DAY

ANNIVERSARY OF WAR'S END FITTING TIME TO GIVE RENEWED THOUGHT TO WORLD PROBLEMS

Madison, Wis.—Armistice Day, Saturday, November 11 has been proclaimed by Governor J. J. Blaine as a "fitting day during which all the people will turn their minds and pledge their efforts to carry out the world's aspiration for peace and civilization and security."

Governor Blaine said that by common consent the day would be a holiday throughout the nation. Following is the governor's proclamation:

"On the eleventh day of this month will occur the fourth anniversary of the ending of the world's most destructive wars. It was a war of such magnitude that to reflect upon the loss of young manhood is appalling and staggering.

Temporarily Averted

"A conference on the limitation of ammaments was convened in Washington a year ago, at which representatives from the nations of the world were brought together to consider the prospects for the reduction of the armaments or the implements of death and destruction. In less than a year after the close of that conference, the world again was on the very brink of a war which promised greater destruction than the late war. "The "next war" was at least temporarily averted.

"It was General Pershing who said that unless there is some solution of the constant problem of world conflicts, civilization is doomed to go head long down to anarchy and chaoes

"Cooperation in helping to arouse the national aspirations of the people to activity for a world peace is highly to be desired.

National Holiday

"Saturday, November 11, 1922, by common consent will be a holiday throughout the nation. On that day it will be proper and fitting for the people, so far as practical, to gather at their customary places of worship in a special service, and to hold public exercises in the several communities and schools to venerate the memory of those who died in the World War in the sacred cause of world peace, and on that day dedicate the services of the people to the achievement of international justice and good will, and the attainment of permanent peace.

"Now therefore, I, as Governor of the State of Wisconsin, do hereby set aside Saturday, November 11, 1922, as a fitting day during which, I trust, all the people will turn their minds and pledge their efforts to carry out the world's aspirations for peace and civilization's security."

GOVERNOR ASKS EXAMINATION OF FORMER SOLDIERS

ALL VETERANS NOW SERVING IN STATE PENAL INSTITUTIONS WILL BE SUBJECTED TO SPECIAL TESTS

Madison, Wis.—A survey of all ex-service men in Wisconsin penal institutions has been directed by Gov. J. J. Blaine to determine the mental, nervous and tubercular condition of the former soldiers. He is asking Dr. William F. Lorenz, director of the Wisconsin Psychiatric institute and Dr. W. S. Middleton of the University clinic to conduct the survey.

The governor said that he would prepare a questionnaire for prison authorities to fill out at the time of examination of each man, so that he may carry out a plan he has to protect these men in their compensation, vocational training and other civil rights growing out of war service.

Need Is Apparent

Following is the letter prepared by Governor Blaine, directing Dr. Lorenz and Dr. Middleton to proceed with a personal examination of former soldiers now in Wisconsin's prisons:

"In accordance with the conferences I have held with you, I desire to ask you to make a survey of ex-service men now serving sentences in the state prison at Waupun, the reformatory at Green Bay, and the house of correction at Milwaukee, with respect to the mental, and nervous and tubercular condition under which a great number of the men may be suffering.

"Last March there were 352 ex-service men in those three institutions. Some of those men ave been discharged on account of the expiration of their terms, some have been paroled by the board of control and many others released through executive clemency, but I find it utterly impossible for me to know the mental and physical condition of those men, except as their applications for executive clemency come to me. While many have been released in the manner above stated, in all probability others have succeeded them.

"Many of the men are without friends or relatives and without money and those have been unable to present their respective cases to me for executive clemency.

Will Insure Protection

"I also desire to suggest that I will prepare a questionnaire for the prison authorities to have filled out at the time of the examination of each man so that I may carry out a plan I have in mind to see that these men are protected in their compensation, vocational training and other civil right growing out of their war service which because of their incarceration in all probability have been overlooked.

"In the cases that should receive immediate attention by transfer to the Psychiatric institute or some sanitarium you can report to me from time to time, and under the statutes I will issue the necessary permit for their transfer as your report and advice suggests.

"I trust that the survey can be commenced as early as possible and completed as soon as possible, and knowing your intense interest in this movement I am leaving that to your own good judgment.

"After the survey is completed, I will then arrange through some department the necessary legal assistance to take care of the civil rights involving obligations of the state and federal government of those who have been unable to enforce such obligations.

"I know this survey will involve additional burdens upon you, and I am very happy to know that you very generously offered to take on those additional burdens."

Juvenile Prohibition For Japan Found Successful

Tokio.—Since its enforcement on April 1 this year the juvenile drinking prohibition act, passed in the last session of the Diet, has reaped fruitful results. It is reported that since the act became effective 99,146 members of young men's associations throughout Japan and its connnies have joined the anti alcohol league in support of the juvenile drinking prohibition movement.

The Place of Pines

CHAPTER I.

The last sound that Mike Clinch heard on earth was the detonation of his own rifle. Probably it was an agreeable sound to him. He lay there with a pleasant expression on his massive features. His watch had fallen out of his pocket.

Quintana shined him with an electric torch; picked up the watch. Then, holding the torch in one hand, he went through the dead man's pockets very thoroughly.

When Quintana had finished, both trays of the flat morocco case were full of jewels. And Quintana was full of wonder and suspicion.

Unquietly he looked upon the dead—upon the glittering contents of the jewel-box—but always his gaze reverted to the dead. The faintest shadow of a smile edged Clinch's lips. Quintana's lips grew graver. He said slowly, like one who does his thinking aloud:

"What is it you have done to me, l'ami Clinch? . . . Are there truly then two sets of precious stones?—two Flaming Jewels?—two gems of Erosite like there never has been in all thees worl' excep' only two more . . . Or is one set false? . . . Have I here one set of paste facsimilies? . . . My frien' Clinch, why do you lie there an' smile at me so ver' funny . . . like you are amuse? . . . I am wondering what you have done to me, my frien' Clinch . . . "

For a while he remained kneeling beside the dead. Then: "Ah, bah," he said, pocketing the morocco case and getting to his feet.

He moved a little way toward the open trail, stopped, came back, stood his rifle against a tree.

For a while he was busy with his sharp Spanish clasp knife, whittling and fitting together two peeled twigs. A cross was the ultimate result. Then he placed Clinch's hands palm to palm upon his chest, laid the cross on his breast, and shined the result with complacency.

Then Quintana took off his hat.

"L'ami Mike," he said, "you were a man! . . . Adios!"

The night had turned frosty. Quintana, wet to the knees and very tired, moved slowly, not daring to leave the trail because of sink-holes.

What he had to have was a fire; he realized that. Somewhere off the trail, in big timber if possible, he must build a fire and master this deadly chill that was slowly paralyzing all power of movement.

At last he came to a place of pines, first growth giants towering into night, and, looking up, saw stars, infinitely distant . . . where perhaps those things called souls drifted like wisps of vapor.

When the fire took, Quintana's thin dark hands had become nearly useless from cold. He could not have crooked finger to trigger.

For a long time he sat close to the blaze, slowly massaging his torpid limbs, but did not dare strip off his foot-gear.

Later he ate and drank languidly, looking up at the stars, speculating as to the possible presence of Mike Clinch up there.

What a chase Clinch had led him after the Flaming Jewel. And now Clinch lay dead in the forest—faintly smiling. At what?

In a very low, passionless voice, Quintana cursed monotonously as he gazed into the fire. In Spanish, French, Portuguese, Italian, he cursed Clinch. After a little while he remembered Clinch's daughter, and he cursed her, elaborately, thoroughly, wishing her black mischance awake and asleep, living or dead.

Presently Quintana slept after his own fashion—that is to say, looking closely at him one could discover a glimmer under his lowered eyelids. And he listened always in that kind of sleep. As though a shadowy part of him were detached from his body, and mounted guard over it.

The inaudible movement of a wood-mouse venturing into the fire-lit circle awoke Quintana. Again a dropping leaf amid distant birches awoke him. Such things. And so he slept with wet feet to the fire and his rifle across his knees; and dreamed of Eve and of murder, and that the Flaming Jewel was but a mass of glass.

At that moment the girl of whose white throat Quintana was dreaming, and whining faintly in his dreams, stood alone outside Clinch's Dump, rifle in hand, listening, fighting the creeping dread that touched her slender body at times—seemed to touch her very heart with frost.

Clinch's men had gone on to Ghost Lake with their wounded and dead, where there was fitter shelter for both. All had gone on; nobody remained to await Clinch's homecoming except Eve Strayer.

It was not yet dawn, but the girl could endure the strain no longer.

With electric torch and rifle she started for the forest, almost running at first; then, among the first trees, moving with caution and in silence along the trail over which Clinch should long since have journeyed homeward.

But nowhere could she discover any impression resembling her stepfather's—that great, firm stride and solid imprint which so often she had tracked through moss and swale and which she knew so well.

Once when she got up from her knees after close examination of the muddy trail, she became aware of the slightest taint in the night air—stood with delicate nostrils quivering—advanced, still conscious of the taint, listening, wary, every stealthy instinct alert.

She had not been mistaken: somewhere in the forest there was smoke. Somewhere a fire was burning. It might not be very far away; it might be distant. Whose fire? Her father's? Would a hunter of men build a fire?

The girl stood shivering in the darkness. There was not a sound.

Now, keeping her cautious feet in the trail by sense of touch alone, she moved on. Gradually, as she advanced, the odor of smoke became more distinct. She heard nothing, saw nothing; but there was a near reek of smoke in her nostrils and she stopped short.

In the faint pale luster she saw a tiny rivulet flowing westward from a spring, and, beside it, in the mud, imprints of a man's feet.

The tracks were small, narrow, slimmer than imprints made by any man she could think of. Under the glimmer of her torch they seemed quite fresh; contours were still sharp, some ready to crumble, and water stood in the heels.

As she stole along, dimly shining the tracks, lifting her head incessantly to listen and peer into the darkness, her quick eye caught something ahead—something very slightly different from the wall of black obscurity—a vague hint of color—the very vaguest tint scarcely perceptible at all.

But she knew it was firelight touching the trunk of an unseen tree.

Now, soundless over damp pine needles she crept. The scent of smoke grew strong in nostril and throat; the pale tint became palely reddish. All about her the blackness seemed palpable—seemed to touch her body with its weight; but, ahead, a ruddy glow stained two huge pines. And presently she saw the fire, burning low, but redly alive. And, after a long, long while, she saw a man.

He had left the fire circle. His pack and belted mackinaw still lay there at the foot of a great tree. But when, finally, she discovered him, he was scarcely visible where he crouched in the shadow of a tree-trunk, with his rifle half lowered at a ready.

She strained her eyes; but distance and obscurity made recognition impossible. And yet, somehow, every quivering instinct within her was telling her that the crouched and shadowy watcher beyond the fire was Quintana.

And every concentrated instinct was telling her that he'd kill her if he caught sight of her; her heart clamored it; her pulses thumped it in her ears.

Had the girl been capable of it she could have killed him where he crouched. She thought of it, but knew it was not in her to do it. And yet Quintana had boasted that he meant to kill her father. That was what terribly concerned her. And there must be a way to stop that danger—some way to stop it short of murder—a way to render this man harmless to her and hers.

No, she could not kill him this way. Except in extremes she could not bring herself to fire upon any human creature. And yet this man must be rendered harmless—somehow—somehow ah!—

As the problem presented itself its solution flashed into her mind. Men of the wilderness knew how to take dangerous creatures alive. To take a dangerous and reasoning human was even less difficult, because reason makes more mistakes than does instinct.

Stealthily, without a sound, the girl crept back through the shadows over the damp pine needles, until, peering fearfully over her shoulder, she saw the last ghost-tint of Quintana's fire die out in the terrific dark behind.

Slowly, still, she moved until her sensitive feet felt the trodden path from Drowned Valley.

Now, with torch flaring, she ran, carrying her rifle at a trail. Before her, here and there, little night creatures fled—a humped-up racoon, dazzled by the glare, a barred owl still struggling with its wood-rat kill.

She ran easily—an agile, tireless young thing, part of the swiftness and silence of the woods—part of the darkness, the sinuous celerity, the ominous hush of wide, still places—part of its very blood and pulse and hot, sweet breath.

Even when she came out among the birches by Clinch's Dump she was breathing evenly and without distress. She ran to the kitchen door but did not enter. On pegs under the porch a score or more of rusty traps hung. She unhooked the largest, wound the chain around it, tucked it under her left arm and started back.

BLAINE REQUESTS PLEDGE TO PEACE ON ARMISTICE DAY

ANNIVERSARY OF WAR'S END FITTING TIME TO GIVE RENEWED THOUGHT TO WORLD PROBLEMS

Madison, Wis.—Armistice Day, Saturday, November 11 has been proclaimed by Governor J. J. Blaine as a "fitting day during which all the people will turn their minds and pledge their efforts to carry out the world's aspiration for peace and civilization and security."

Governor Blaine said that by common consent the day would be a holiday throughout the nation. Following is the governor's proclamation:

"On the eleventh day of this month will occur the fourth anniversary of the ending of the world's most destructive wars. It was a war of such magnitude that to reflect upon the loss of young manhood is appalling and staggering.

Temporarily Averted

"A conference on the limitation of ammaments was convened in Washington a year ago, at which representatives from the nations of the world were brought together to consider the prospects for the reduction of the armaments or the implements of death and destruction. In less than a year after the close of that conference, the world again was on the very brink of a war which promised greater detruction than the late war. "The "next war" was at least temporarily averted.

"It was General Pershing who said that unless there is some solution of the constant problem of world conflicts, civilization is doomed to go head long down to anarchy and chaoes

"Cooperation in helping to arouse the national aspirations of the people to activity for a world peace is highly to be desired.

National Holiday

"Saturday, November 11, 1922, by common consent will be a holiday throughout the nation. On that day it will be proper and fitting for the people, so far as proctical, to gather at their customary places of worship in a special service, and to hold public exercises in the several communities and schools to venerate the memory of those who died in the World War in the sacred cause of world peace, and on that day dedicate the services of the people to the achievement of international justice and good will, and the attainment of permanent peace.

"Now therefore, I, as Governor of the State of Wisconsin, do hereby set aside Saturday, November 11, 1922, as a fitting day during which, I trust, all the people will turn their minds and pledge their efforts to carry out the world's aspirations for peace and civilization's security."

GOVERNOR ASKS EXAMINATION OF FORMER SOLDIERS

ALL VETERANS NOW SERVING IN STATE PENAL INSTITUTIONS WILL BE SUBJECTED TO SPECIAL TESTS

Madison, Wis.—A survey of all ex-service men in Wisconsin penal institutions has been directed by Gov. J. J. Blaine to determine the mental, nervous and tubercular condition of the former soldiers. He is asking Dr. William F. Lorenz, director of the Wisconsin Psychiatric institute and Dr. W. S. Middleton of the University clinic to conduct the survey.

The governor said that he would prepare a questionnaire for prison authorities to fill out at the time of examination of each man, so that he may carry out a plan he has to protect these men in their compensation, vocational training and other civil rights growing out of war service.

Need Is Apparent

Following is the letter prepared by Governor Blaine, directing Dr. Lorenz and Dr. Middleton to proceed with a personal examination of former soldiers now in Wisconsin's prisons:

"In accordance with the conferences I have held with you, I desire to ask you to make a survey of ex-service men now serving sentences in the state prison at Waupun, the reformatory at Green Bay, and the house of correction at Milwaukee, with respect to the mental, and nervous and tubercular condition under which a great number of the men may be suffering.

"Last March there were 352 ex-service men in those three institutions. Some of those men ave been discharged on account of the expiration of their terms, some have been paroled by the board of control and many others released through executive clemency, but I find it utterly impossible for me to know the mental and physical condition of those men, except as their applications for executive clemency come to me. While many have been released in the manner above stated, in all probability others have succeeded them.

"Many of the men are without friends or relatives and without money and those have been unable to present their respective cases to me for executive clemency.

Will Insure Protection

"I also desire to suggest that I will prepare a questionnaire for the prison authorities to have filled out at the time of the examination of each man so that I may carry out a plan I have in mind to see that these men are protected in their compensation, vocational training and other civil right growing out of their war service which because of their incarceration in all probability have been overlooked.

"In the cases that should receive immediate attention by transfer to the Psychiatric institute or some sanitarium you can report to me from time to time, and under the statutes I will issue the necessary permit for their transfer as your report and advice suggests.

"I trust that the survey can be commenced as early as possible and completed as soon as possible, and knowing your intense interest in this movement I am leaving that to your own good judgment.

"After the survey is completed, I will then arrange through some department the necessary legal assistance to take care of the civil rights involving obligations of the state and federal government of those who have been unable to enforce such obligations.

"I know this survey will involve additional burdens upon you, and I am very happy to know that you very generously offered to take on those additional burdens."

Juvenile Prohibition For Japan Found Successful

Tokio.—Since its enforcement on April 1 this year the juvenile drinking prohibition act, passed in the last session of the Diet, has reaped fruitful results. It is reported that since the act became effective 99,146 members of young men's associations throughout Japan and its cononies have joined the anti-alcohol league in support of the juvenile drinking prohibition movement.

Anti-League Candidates Leading In North Dakota

(By Associated Press)

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 8—The Anti-Non Partisan League candidates continued to return leads early today as additional returns from yesterday's election were tabulated.

Indications were that Governor R. A. Nestos had been re-elected and J. T. F. O'Connor, Democrat, had a good lead over Lynn J. Frazier, Republican and Non-Partisan, for United States Senate.

League forces, however, declared these leads would be cut down and possibly overcome when all the rural results are in from the Non-Partisan strongholds.

Dog Co-Stars with Barthelmess in "Sonny"

Despite the fact that Richard Barthelmess is the star, canine instinct supplies the dominant note of "Sonny," the First National atraction which opens at the Palace Theatre tonight. Without reflection upon the work of the star, who, in his dual part of Joe Peters and Sonny Crosby, is said to give the most human characterizations of his screen career the key to the tensely dramatic situations are furnished by two actors whose names are not even credited on the screen billing.

They are Waggle and Lassie, the two canine pets of the Barthelmess household. Lassie will be recalled as the collie who won many wet eyes during the tragic moments of "Tol'able David." Waggles is a newer and smaller acquisition of the Barthelmess household, being the pride of Mrs. Richard Barthelmess (Mary Hay).

It is the marvelous instinct of these two dogs to detect their masters and rebel at impersonations that furnishes the climax to a plot of striking dramatic power and emotional appeal.

The supporting cast includes Margaret Seddon, Pauline Garon, Lucy Fox, Herbert Nicholls, James Terbell, Margaret Elizabeth Faulconer and Virginia Magee.

GRUWELL'S IDEAL THEATER

Constance Talmadge, bouyant, bubbling over Connie, makes the laughing hit of her entire career in "Polly of the Follies" which pleases a large "optience" as Mae Tinee would say, at Gruwell's Ideal Theater last night and continues there today and Thursday. This sparkling gem of light humor is decidedly different from the stereotyped style of photoplay, and combines spectacle and human heart interest story in an extraordinary degree.

Connie has a most appealing role in the part of Polly Meacham, a modern Cinderella from Bowling Green who wants to go on the stage and after appalling her sanctimonious old skunk of an uncle by putting on a rattling good "movie" in his drug store, she goes and gets a job in the Zeigfeld Follies by a most amazing coup only to be promptly fired for an offense quite as amazing. Meanwhile she does some directing of her own at a social fete and pulls some other stunts which are indeed rich.

Kenneth Harlan is leading man opposite the star, following up his success in Constance Talmadge's previous pictures. George Fawcett returns to the screen in this picture after a successful appearance on the speaking stage. Other members of the cast include Horace Knight, Thomas Carr, Larry Fisher, Frank Lalor, Ina Rorke, Mildred Arden, Paul Doucet, Therest Maxwell-Conover, Billie Dove, James Gleason, Bernard Randall and John Daly Murphy.

It will be shown again tonight and tomorroy evening and those who fail to see it are going to miss one of the real treats of the season. With it is shown a specially selected program of short novelties—a current News reel, a beautiful scenic and a Starland Revue showing intimate views of a number of the celebrities of the stage. And the whole charming entertainment is pleasingly set to music by the Wisconsin Rapids Quintette.

One bit of heroism is always within our power—the keeping of our petty troubles to ourselves.

He who loses money loses much; he who loses a friend loses more; but he who loses courage loses all.

The Easier Way.

It's so easy to yell for help and get it that a lot of people never think it worth while to try and work their own way out of their difficulties.

Hold Business Optimism Justified Despite Lack Of Farmer Buying

That fundamental conditions underlying the forward movement of business which began some months ago are instrinsically sound is evidenced by the prompt resumption of progress in various industries as soon as the major retarding influences of the strike situation were removed, states the current number of "The Guaranty Survey", issued by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. Nevertheless, "The Survey" continues, it is well to recognize that powerful factors in the business situation are tending to restrain any developments which may promise a repetition of expansion on a scale comparable to that of 1919-1920. The lack of stable adjustment of prices of farm products to prices in general, rising wage scales and other costs of production, inadequate railway equipment, continuing uncertainties in the conditions abroad upon which our foreign trade depends, and the overtaking of demand in some lines of production in which shortage of supplies has long persisted—all combine to limit the probable range of early general expansion.

Uneven Progress

Moreover, the progress recorded in recent months have all along been spotty. In some industries comparatively little betterment has been effected. But no measures for hastening readjustment here through the agency of inflation should be tolerated. It is better for all business in the long run that recovery from the depression should proceed gradually enough for the establishment of durable bases rather than that overreaching expansion in a few lines should further disturb the processes of orderly readjustment.

Buying Powers of the Farmers

It has been expected in many quarters that an extraordinary increase in trade an extraordinary increase this fall in consequence of revived purchasing power of the farmers. Although the looked-for wave of buying by the farmers has not fully materialized, the marked increases in cotton, grain, and cattle prices of recent weeks may materially alter the business situation. The disposition of farmers to spend and to consume has been restrained in part by the memory of what followed a recent period of extravagant spending, but for more compelling reasons they are now on the whole moderate spenders.

Prices of leading farm products are relatively low, with a striking exception in the case of cotton; and it is, of course, relative rather than absolute prices which so seriously restrict the purchasing power of the farmers. While there has been considerable recovery in prices of a number of farm products in October, in earlier weeks prices of wheat and corn sagged materially. The prices then current could only mean a smaller volume of immediate power than is requisite to induce the degree of business activity which was so generally expected.

At the beginning of 1920, shortly before the peak of post-war prices was reached, the average prices of farm products occupied very nearly the same relation to average prices of all commodities as in 1913. However, during 1920, the index of prices of farm products compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics fell increasingly below that for all commodities. There was but little sustained improvement in this respect in 1921, and at the end of that year average about 14 per cent out of line.

Price changes in the first two months of 1922 brought the farm products index more nearly into accord with the all-commodities index than it had been for more than two years, the variation in Fedurary being only about 7 per cent. Thereafter, until September, the index showed an increasing spread of prices of farm products below the average of all commodities, and in that month it was 13 per cent below the index for all commodities. It is not surprising, therefore, that the buying power of the farmers this fall has proved a measure disappointing.

Moreover, aggregate indebetedness of the farmers, much of it the heritage of the period of war and post-war prosperity, is extraordinarily large. Money which under other conditions would be expeded promptly by the farmers for their ordinary needs is going this fall to reduce mortgages and to pay off bank loans and other debts.

What becomes of 30,000,000 cement sacks a year?

Practically 90 per cent of the 95,000,000 barrels of portland cement shipped last year was delivered in returnable cotton sacks.

To supply users of cement promptly, the industry must have about 200,000,000 sacks either on hand or in use.

The sack method of shipping is most convenient. There are four sacks to a barrel. Each sack contains 94 pounds of cement—a cubic foot. And a cubic foot is a handy volume in proportioning concrete mixtures.

When cement is shipped, the sacks are billed to the purchaser. When they are returned, they are bought back at the same price if they are in usable or repairable condition. This involves much work in checking, cleaning, sorting and repairing.

But in spite of the fact that every good cement sack is redeemable, 30,000,000 of the sacks shipped every year fail to come back—a loss of nearly $5,000,000 a year at present prices of new sacks.

To replace these "lost, strayed or stolen" sacks requires annually over 30,000 bales of cotton. It requires that the textile industry weave a strip of cloth 30 inches wide and 17,000 miles long. It means that 1,600 looms are kept working full time for a year.

Thousands of sacks returned to the cement mills for redemption are damaged, yet accepted for credit, if they can be repaired. This repair is done by the cement manufacturer at his own expense.

A medium sized plant shipping, say 1,000,000 barrels of cement a year, has to repair an average of 6,000 sacks per day from among those returned for credit. This keeps 6 people constantly working at rapidly operated electric sewing machines. In a million barrel a year plant, 22 people are constantly employed sorting, counting, repairing and otherwise caring for returned sacks so that they may again be used.

At the present time $30,000,000 would be a conservative estimate of the investment which the cement industry has in cotton sacks.

Sacks are one of the lesser, but nevertheless important items in the cement industry.

Nekoosa Farmers Organize Club At Meeting Tuesday

A Nekoosa Farmers Club was organized at a meeting last night of farmers in the Nekoosa district. Felix Roth was elected the first president of the organization, with Henry Reinberg, vice-president and Ed. Schaffenburger secretary and treasurer.

The proposition for a cooperative creamery at Nekoosa was brought up for discussion and met with apparent favor. It was decided to sound out the sentiment among the farmers to a greater extent before any action is taken, and meeting of farmers on both the east and west sides of the river are planned for the near future.

County Agent R. A. Peterson and A. N. Howalt of the Wood County Agricultural school were present at the meeting and gave short talks. Mr. Howalt talked on the recent state potato show at Stevens Point and emphasized the value of community agricultural fairs. County Agent Peterson spoke of the importance of the pushing of test association work.

November 2 was set as the date of the club's next meeting.

The Easier Way.

It's so easy to yell for help and get it that a lot of people never think it worth while to try and work their own way out of their difficulties.

Hold Business Optimism Justified Despite Lack Of Farmer Buying

That fundamental conditions underlying the forward movement of business which began some months ago are instrinsically sound is evidenced by the prompt resumption of progress in various industries as soon as the major retarding influences of the strike situation were removed, states the current number of "The Guaranty Survey", issued by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. Nevertheless, "The Survey" continues, it is well to recognize that powerful factors in the business situation are tending to restrain any developments which may promise a repetition of expansion on a scale comparable to that of 1919-1920. The lack of stable adjustment of prices of farm products to prices in general, rising wage scales and other costs of production, inadequate railway equipment, continuing uncertainties in the conditions abroad upon which our foreign trade depends, and the overtaking of demand in some lines of production in which shortage of supplies has long persisted—all combine to limit the probable range of early general expansion.

Uneven Progress

Moreover, the progress recorded in recent months have all along been spotty. In some industries comparatively little betterment has been effected. But no measures for hastening readjustment here through the agency of inflation should be tolerated. It is better for all business in the long run that recovery from the depression should proceed gradually enough for the establishment of durable bases rather than that overreaching expansion in a few lines should further disturb the processes of orderly readjustment.

Buying Powers of the Farmers

It has been expected in many quarters that an extraordinary increase in trade an extraordinary increase this fall in consequence of revived purchasing power of the farmers. Although the looked-for wave of buying by the farmers has not fully materialized, the marked increases in cotton, grain, and cattle prices of recent weeks may materially alter the business situation. The disposition of farmers to spend and to consume has been restrained in part by the memory of what followed a recent period of extravagant spending, but for more compelling reasons they are now on the whole moderate spenders.

Prices of leading farm products are relatively low, with a striking exception in the case of cotton; and it is, of course, relative rather than absolute prices which so seriously restrict the purchasing power of the farmers. While there has been considerable recovery in prices of a number of farm products in October, in earlier weeks prices of wheat and corn sagged materially. The prices then current could only mean a smaller volume of immediate power than is requisite to induce the degree of business activity which was so generally expected.

At the beginning of 1920, shortly before the peak of post-war prices was reached, the average prices of farm products occupied very nearly the same relation to average prices of all commodities as in 1913. However, during 1920, the index of prices of farm products compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics fell increasingly below that for all commodities. There was but little sustained improveemnt in this respect in 1921, and at the end of that year average about 14 per cent out of line.

Price changes in the first two months of 1922 brought the farm products index more nearly into accord with the all-commodities index than it had been for more than two years, the variation in Fedurary being only about 7 per cent. Thereafter, until September, the index showed an increasing spread of prices of farm products below the average of all commodities, and in that month it was 13 per cent below the index for all commodities. It is not surprising, therefore, that the buying power of the farmers this fall has proved a measure disappointing.

Moreover, aggregate indebetedness of the farmers, much of it the heritage of the period of war and post-war prosperity, is extraordinarily large. Money which under other conditions would be expeded promptly by the farmers for their ordinary needs is going this fall to reduce mortgages and to pay off bank loans and other debts.

Threatened Illini Protest Of Williams Bunk - Richards

STAR BACK AND BADGER CAPTAIN WILL PLAY SATURDAY BADGER MENTOR SAYS FOLLOWING REPORT

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8—"It is the bunk," Coach John Richards said, yesterday in regard to the reported action of Director of Athletics George Huff, of Illinois, in securing photographs of back files of the Beloit Daily News carrying accounts of the playing of "Rollie" Williams, captain of the Wisconsin football team with a professional team there.

"We have taken Williams' case up several times and have cleared him," Richards said. "The Illinois people do not realize that Williams was not in school at the time the game was played there, although he had been at school early in the fall, he was out at that time. If they want to start up that charge again, let them go. We are not in danger as far as I can see."

Gather Information

Beloit, Wis.—Illinois university may protest Capt. Rollie Williams of the Wisconsin football team before the Illini-Badger homecoming clash at Madison on Saturday following information gathered at Beloit.

Charges that Williams is a "pro" may be made by Athletic Director George Huff of Urbana, it is said, as a result of affidavits and photographic records of back files of the Beloit Daily News made by his agents here on Saturday.

Williams played in a four game basketball series with the Janesville Cardinals against the Beloit Fairies in February, 1920, and it is stories of these games that have been photographed and sent to Huff.

Williams starred in all of them and was a material factor in Janesville's three out of four series win.

Badger officials assert that Williams was not enrolled at Wisconsin during semester when the series took place and that he received no money for his services. Illinois alumni at Beloit are working with Huff in gathering the data concerning Williams' alleged "pro" appearance here.

School Children Of City Take Part In Essay Contest

Pupils from the fifth to the eighth grade in all the schools of the city are taking part in a book review essay contest in connection with the annual Children's Book Week, November 12 to 18. Prizes are offered for the best essays from each grade, and it is the hope of the local school and library authorities that the contest will be of great value in showing which titles are the most popular with the school children, and what they think of the books which they read.

The T. B. Scott Public Library will have a special exhibit of books for children on display during the week, and will also distribute a number of desirable gift books during that period.

Public libraries, bookstores, mothers clubs, parent-teachers' association, schools, churches and other organizations concerned with children throughout the country are taking advantage of the week to emphasize the importance of books for boys and girls. Exhibits of books to buy for children, discussion of books children really like to read, distribution of lists of books for young people, and consideration of authors and illustrators who are devoting their talents to children's books are none of the features of the week in this and other communities.

BACKWOODS SURGERY

BY CAPTAIN FRANK WINCH

No one going afield ever expects to meet with an accident, yet the element of danger is always present. What to do and how to do it when one encounters an emergency must be planned beforehand. Neglect on the part of the sportsman to fortify himself with a first aid kit is but little short of criminal negligence, and assuredly approaches the peak of folly. Have a chat with your family doctor before your next trip afield, equip yourself with the essentials that are to be used in the following chronicle of action, clip this article and carry it in the same wallet with your hunting license. If an accident should happen, keep cool, a stiff upper lip, grit your teeth and do as directed.

The most common mishaps while hunting may be classed as follows: gun-shot wounds, fractures, cuts, burns, sprains, blisters and bruises. While space prevents a comprehensive treatment of the subject, the following notes will be found of assistance.

Gun-Shot Wound—Clean it out. If necessary use the knife to clear away any foreign substance and to induce bleeding. Do not attempt to remove the bullet or shot pellets. Apply iodine after disinfecting the wound with a solution of blorozene or benetol. Dress wound with gauze, a pad of cotton, and then bandage. Use plenty of clear water.

Fractures—Don't attempt to set the bone. Do not move the injured part any more than possible. Make a splint to keep the limb rigid and resting easy. Strips of bark or a series of small sticks, over a pad of cotton or soft ferns or moss, after the wound is bandaged will do. Then wrap the injured member in splints.

Cuts—Disinfect with chlorozene or Benetol. Running water will do. When cleaned from dirt, swab with iodine, cover with adhesive plaster for small cut or a pad of gauze and bandage. Try to stop the flow of blood temporarily by raising the injured part as high a spossible above the heart. If the blood is dark red or purplish, a vein has been cut. If it is bright red an artery has been incised and the flow will come in jets. For vein cuts press upon the veins below the wound, put on compress and bind tightly enough to stop the bleeding. If an artery has been cut try to find it above the wound by pressing hard where you think it may pass close to a bone. Apply a tourniquet between the wound and the heart. Under it and directly over the artery place a cartridge, piece of stick, or other hard substance. Tighten the bandage until the bleeding stops, and then release bandage every once in a while even before the bleeding stops. This is only an expedient, for a cut artery must be closed by tieing one or both ends. Use forceps or tweezers to get ahold of the artery and draw it out, then take a piece of strong thread, sterilize it in boiling water, chlorozene, or benetol and loop it in a knot, slip this down over the forceps, around the artery and draw tight. A ruptured artery should be cut in two before operated. When the flow of blood is once stayed get to a doctor as soon as possible. Powdered alum, pressed hard into the wound (except an artery) will stop bleeding, so will any substance strong with tann, such as powdered sumac leaves, pulverized oak or hemlock.

Burns—Exclude air from the affected part at once, and use some greasy substance, such as an ointment, flour and water made into a paste, or butter. Cut away any burned clothing or flesh. Paint with iodine and dress with baking powder, then cover with a gauze compress.

Sprain—Rest and freedom from movement. Apply strips of adhesive plaster about two inches wide. Cold water applications will help.

Blister—Pick with needle or pin that has been sterilized over a flame. Apply cotton and fasten on with a strip of adhesive plaster.

Bruises—Apply hot applications. A hot compress of gauze and tightly bandage. Later apply water on towel as hot as you can stand it. Repeat until soreness and pain disappear.

The kit which can be made up compactly and sealed air-tight should contain: roll of half-inch surgeons' rubber plaster, one ounce absorbent cotton, three-inch roller bandage, three-inch cotton roller bandage, chlorazene tablets, iodine ampules, safety razor blade, surgeons' combined arterial forcepts and needle holder, alum, silk thread and pair of small scissors.

Not a pleasant looking layout, my friend, as we sit snugly at home, with slippered feet and jimmy pipe, but—when a fellow is down and out through carelessness or accident that is apt to happen to anyone—then, and only then will we appreciate the foresight that packed an emergency outfit away in the duffle bag.

The open woods have many big moments and thrills aplenty, but the real man-sized test of man comes when a pal that you love is stricken down and you and the little outfit stands between him and death. Roll up your sleeves, grit your teeth under a reassuring smile, and dig in.

Threatened Illini Protest Of Williams Bunk - Richards

STAR BACK AND BADGER CAPTAIN WILL PLAY SATURDAY BADGER MENTOR SAYS FOLLOWING REPORT

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8—"It is the bunk," Coach John Richards said yesterday in regard to the reported action of Director of Athletics George Huff, of Illinois, in securing photographs of back files of the Beloit Daily News carrying accounts of the playing of "Rollie" Williams, captain of the Wisconsin football team with a professional team there.

"We have taken Williams' case up several times and have cleared him," Richards said. "The Illinois people do not realize that Williams was not in school at the time the game was played there, although he had been at school early in the fall, he was out at that time. If they want to start up that charge again, let them go. We are not in danger as far as I can see."

Gather Information

Beloit, Wis.—Illinois university may protest Capt. Rollie Williams of the Wisconsin football team before the Illini-Badger homecoming clash at Madison on Saturday following information gathered at Beloit.

Charges that Williams is a "pro" may be made by Athletic Director George Huff of Urbana, it is said, as a result of affidavits and photographic records of back files of the Beloit Daily News made by his agents here on Saturday.

Williams played in a four game basketball series with the Janesville Cardinals against the Beloit Fairies in February, 1920, and it is stories of these games that have been photographed and sent to Huff.

Williams starred in all of them and was a material factor in Janesville's three out of four series win.

Badger officials assert that Williams was not enrolled at Wisconsin during semester when the series took place and that he received no money for his services. Illinois alumni at Beloit are working with Huff in gathering the data concerning Williams' alleged "pro" appearance here.

School Children Of City Take Part In Essay Contest

Pupils from the fifth to the eighth grade in all the schools of the city are taking part in a book review essay contest in connection with the annual Children's Book Week, November 12 to 18. Prizes are offered for the best essays from each grade, and it is the hope of the local school and library authorities that the contest will be of great value in showing which titles are the most popular with the school children, and what they think of the books which they read.

The T. B. Scott Public Library will have a special exhibit of books for children on display during the week, and will also distribute a number of desirable gift books during that period.

Public libraries, bookstores, mothers clubs, parent-teachers' association, schools, churches and other organizations concerned with children throughout the country are taking advantage of the week to emphasize the importance of books for boys and girls. Exhibits of books to buy for children, discussion of books children really like to read, distribution of lists of books for young people, and consideration of authors and illustrators who are devoting their talents to children's books are none of the features of the week in this and other communities.

BACKWOODS SURGERY

BY CAPTAIN FRANK WINCH

No one going afield ever expects to meet with an accident, yet the element of danger is always present. What to do and how to do it when one encounters an emergency must be planned beforehand. Neglect on the part of the sportsman to fortify himself with a first aid kit is but little short of criminal negligence, and assuredly approaches the peak of folly. Have a chat with your family doctor before your next trip afield, equip yourself with the essentials that are to be used in the following chronicle of action, clip this article and carry it in the same wallet with your hunting license. If an accident should happen, keep cool, a stiff upper lip, grit your teeth and do as directed.

The most common mishaps while hunting may be classed as follows: gunshot wounds, fractures, cuts, burns, sprains, blisters and bruises. While space prevents a comprehensive treatment of the subject, the following notes will be found of assistance.

Gun-Shot Wound—Clean it out. If necessary use the knife to clear away any foreign substance and to induce bleeding. Do not attempt to remove the bullet or shot pellets. Apply iodine after disinfecting the wound with a solution of klorozene or benetol. Dress wound with gauze, a pad of cotton, and then bandage. Use plenty of clear water.

Fractures—Don't attempt to set the bone. Do not move the injured part any more than possible. Make a splint to keep the limb rigid and resting easy. Strips of bark or a series of small sticks, over a pad of cotton or soft ferns or moss, after the wound is bandaged will do. Then wrap the injured member in splints.

Cuts—Disinfect with chlorozene or Benetol. Running water will do. When cleaned from dirt, swab with iodine, cover with adhesive plaster for small cut or a pad of gauze and bandage. Try to stop the flow of blood temporarily by raising the injured part as high a spossible above the heart. If the blood is dark red or purplish, a vein has been cut. If it is bright red an artery has been incised and the flow will come in jets. For vein cuts press upon the veins below the wound, put on compress and bind tightly enough to stop the bleeding. If an artery has been cut try to find it above the wound by pressing hard where you think it may pass close to a bone. Apply a tourniquet between the wound and the heart. Under it and directly over the artery place a cartridge, piece of stick, or other hard substance. Tighten the bandage until the bleeding stops, and then release bandage every once in a while even before the bleeding stops. This is only an expedient, for a cut artery must be closed by tying one or both ends. Use forceps or tweezers to get ahold of the artery and draw it out, then take a piece of strong thread, sterilize it in boiling water, chlorozene, or benetol and loop it in a knot, slip this down over the forceps, around the artery and draw tight. A ruptured artery should be cut in two before operated. When the flow of blood is once stayed get to a doctor as soon as possible. Powdered alum, pressed hard into the wound (except an artery) will stop bleeding, so will any substance strong with tann, such as powdered sumac leaves, pulverizes oak or hemlock.

Burns—Exclude air from the affected part at once, and use some greasy substance, such as an ointment, flour and water made into a paste, or butter. Cut away any burned clothing orflesh Paint with iodine and dress with baking powder, then cover with a gauze compress.

Sprain—Rest and freedom from movement. Apply strips of adhesive plaster about two inches wide. Cold water applications will help.

Blister—Pick with needle or pin that has been sterilized over a flame. Apply cotton and fasten on with a strip of adhesive plaster.

Bruises—Apply hot applications. A hot compress of gauze and tightly bandage. Later apply water or towel as hot as you can stand it. Repeat until soreness and pain disappear.

The kit which can be made up compactly and sealed air-tight should contain: roll of half-inch surgeons' rubber plaster, one ounce absorbent cotton, three-inch roller bandage, three-inch cotton roller bandage, chlorazene tablets, iodine ampules, safety razor blade, surgeons' combined arterial forceps and needle holder, alum, silk thread and pair of small scissors.

Not a pleasant looking layout, my friend, as we sit snugly at home, with slippered feet and jimmy pipe, but—when a fellow is down and out through carelessness or accident that is apt to happen to anyone—then, and only then will we appreciate the foresight that packed an emergency outfit away in the duffle bag.

The open woods have many big moments and thrills aplenty, but the real man-sized test of man comes when a pal that you love is stricken down and you and the little outfit stands between him and death. Roll up your sleeves, grit your teeth under a reassuring smile, and dig in.

THANKSGIVING

The Great Home Festival

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30TH

VISIONS of roast turkey stuffed with sweet chestnut dressing: memories of "Mother's" cranberry sauce and juicy mince pies: what wonder that home folks all over the land lay aside dull care and gather in joyful homecomings on this glad day. What a hustle and bustle of preparation. What anticipations of seeing loved ones gathered again 'round the family fireside. The young folks with the old folks, or vice versa. Everybody thankful for everything. Wouldn't those early New England colonists who originated this day be surprised how their quaint custom has grown to be a national affair, celebrated by more than a hundred million people?

Thankful

I'm thankful that I'm living in this glorious land of ours,
Where the skies are bright with sunshine and the fields are gay with flowers;
I'm thankful that I'm living in this age of wonders new,
When men are bravely striving for the things they know are true,
And I thank the Lord this morning for the dawn which now appears,
Giving promise of a future that shall shine with happy years.
I'm thankful for the laughter of my children and their health,
Which are richer, sweeter blessings than the gifts of pomp and wealth;
I'm thankful for the friendship of the men from day to day
Who have filled my life with kindness and have smoothed my troubled way,
And I thank the Lord this morning for the strength that has been mine,
To bear my bit of burden and to guard my humble vine.

WET WEATHER FOOTWEAR

No doubt the wet weather will soon be here and the question is are you ready to meet it? Many folks put off buying their rubber footwear until the first snow storm hits, but it is a wise thing to be ready when it hits. We are ready to meet your foot supplies and our stocks of rubber overshoes, boots and rubbers are now complete; come and make your selection early.

HOOD KATTLE KING all rubber uppers

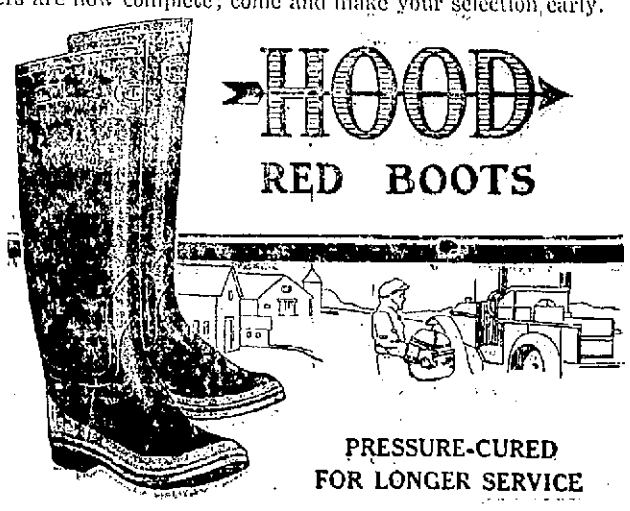
Easy to Clean
Warm, Waterproof, Durable

IF YOU WANT an overshoe that will keep your feet dry and warm in the coldest weather—one that you can wear in mud, or slush, or snow, or around the cow barn, without it becoming strong smelling—ask us for Hood Kattle Kings.

You get extra wear at no extra cost in Hood Kattle Kings—the first and still the best. The gray tire-tread sole is joined to the easy-to-clean, all-rubber upper by the Hood pressure-process. Imitators can copy the appearance but they can not use the patented process that's responsible for the extra durability.

You are sure of the wear when you buy them from us.

KATTLE KING—Per Pair $3.35



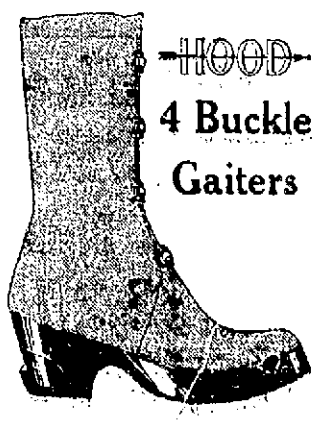
HOOD RED BOOTS

PRESSURE-CURED FOR LONGER SERVICE

WHEN WE TELL you that Hood Red Boots will give you the greatest value you ever got for your money, we mean exactly what we say.

The gray sole and red upper are welded into one wear-resisting piece by the Hood pressure-process, that keeps the upper pliable while, at the same time, it toughens the sole to endure the hardest wear. They are good looking boots, too.

Come in and let us show you a pair. You'll see at once why we say Hood Red Boots are best for every purpose.



HOOD 4 Buckle Gaiters

STYLISH, DURABLE gaiters that fit the shoes perfectly and have uppers that set smoothly.

The Hood special construction prevents short fits and premature heel breaks.

The demand for these gaiters always exceeds the supply. Get yours now — while our stock of sizes is complete.

Make Your House a HOME by Putting in a Waterbury Pipeless Furnace

Clean — Safe — Convenient

Burns any Fuel

No worry about getting a certain kind of fuel. You can heat your entire house and do it economically with one of our furnaces, and with any kind of fuel. Many of our customers are doing this. The Waterbury Furnace is seamless and gas tight. No Coal Gas, Smoke, Ashes or Dust can get into the rooms above and you do not have to take the furnace out in the Spring because it is in the basement where a heating plant belongs. We have been busy installing a number of heating plants this Fall and would be glad to call and give you an estimate on your job. Don't wait any longer but have a Waterbury installed at once. You will never feel sorry for it.

For the Kitchen - a Monarch Range

For the Kitchen you cannot do better than buy a Monarch Range. All Monarch Ranges are equipped with Draft Door, High Closet, Vitreous Enameled, Flue linings to prevent rust danger, full polished top with mirco process finish (NO BLACKING). Duplex draft and Duplex grates. Burns any kind of fuel and does it economically. A visit to our hardware department where a fine line of Monarchs are on display will be time well spent. Before buying that range be sure to visit us.

For the Family that has to use a Heater the

IDEAL HEATER
—BURNS THE SMOKE—

Smoke is worth money. It is formed by unburned carbon particles and uncombusted volatile gases. These contain as much heat as ordinary stoves give out.

IDEAL HEATER

The coal dealers profit depends on your waste. The more smoke escaping from the chimney, the less heat value you get out of your coal. The IDEAL HEATER is the original down-draft stove. It warms the floors not the outside air. For the sake of economy, comfort and durability come to see this heater and come now. Ask any of your friends that have one—they are our best recommendations. The Ideal Heater burns hard coal, soft coal or wood.
